

AMIEU NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL OFFICER

AUSTRALASIAN MEAT INDUSTRY EMPLOYEES UNION - 10/09/2019

National Industrial Officer

Preferably Adelaide Based

The Australasian Meat Industry Employees Union is the trade union representing members working in abattoirs, red and white meat processing, smallgoods, supermarket and general butchery around Australia. We are looking for an energetic, enthusiastic and self-motivated person to join our team as our National Industrial Officer.

Key responsibilities of this role are:

- Provide legal advice to the Federal Secretary and Branch Secretaries
- Represent the Union in various Industrial forums such as:
 1. The Fair Work Commission
 2. The Federal Circuit Court
 3. The Industrial Relations Court of SA
- Award maintenance and variations
- Dispute hearings
- Unfair Dismissals
- Underpayment hearings
- Various industrial applications
- Liaise with and attend various industry meetings with the Federal Secretary
- Monitor developments in the various industrial tribunals that may impact on the meat industry or on matters ongoing by the AMIEU
- Provide practical support to the various branches of the AMIEU
- Compliance related activities

The person we need will be a resilient team player with a positive and enthusiastic outlook, a demonstrated commitment to union or community activism, excellent all-round communication skills, and the ability to build and maintain constructive relationships. The role is busy and challenging so great organisational, time management and problem solving abilities are all a must.

The successful applicant will preferably be based in our Federal Office in Adelaide, but this is not a prerequisite.

The role will require interstate travel and appearing in the Fair Work Commission (or other tribunal) in various states as matters arise.
